My suggestions:

1. Long term solution: you should include those columbariums in the land use planning stage. When the residents move in any buildings near a columbarium, they must have already fully recognised that there is a colubaruium nearby or a columbarium to be built in the future. For example, there is a big cemetery and crematorium near 藍灣半島 in siu sai wan and the residents never complain because before they moved in, the cemetery and crematorium already exist.

2. Short term solution: in order to convince the community to accept your proposed locations for the columbarium, you must ensure that the columbariums can add value to the community, or some trade-offs like sports facilities or library etc.
